

Klökkeblömst

[sic!]

After two well-received CD's with original compositions by the double award winning composer and bass player Peter Danstrup the Danish trio Klökkeblömst releases their third CD in three years.

[sic!] is the three musician's contribution to contemporary improvised jazz, harboring the core values of community, interplay and fantasy.

The band has worked with three kinds of improvisation: live in the studio, double improvisation, where you improvise on top of a previous improvisation and finally a more advanced use of recording techniques, where the musicians simultaneously, without hearing one another, improvise on top of a foregoing improvised recording. Erasing the earlier recording and only hearing the second impro leaves you with a unique, unforeseeable, yet coherent musical statement.

One of the band's trademarks has been the long titles that metrically corresponded to the opening phrases of the theme. This time the titles are condensed, one-syllable words, all rhyming with [sic!].

Even though the music is created on the spot the band has kept its unique and recognizable sound, where outstanding musicianship merges to a unity that is rarely heard.

Klökkeblömst are:

Anders Banke: saxophone

Peter Danstrup: acoustic bass guitar

Anders Provis: percussion
